Considerable excitement and much assemblage was created Sunday evening at the railway crossing on Campbell Avenue when Peter Sbragia collided with the rear end of a small truck. The crash with an accompaniment of yells soon brought the throng. Reports as to the cause are conflicting but these do not alter the results, a badly damaged radiator, lights, hood and fenders on the Sbragia car.

Craig's Move To New Home

The many friends of Mrs. David Craig, who spent one and one-half years here caring for her mother, Mrs. A. P. Merrill, will be interested in a clipping from a Great Falls, Mont., paper:

"After Thirty Years in City."

"David Craig, for 30 years a resident of Great Falls, will leave this week, accompanied by Mrs. Craig, to make a home in Conrad, where he and his son-in-law have purchased the Conrad Securities Corporation. The corporation deals in real estate, insurance, bonds, etc., and is one of the most prosperous firms of the county seat. Mr. Craig came to Great Falls direct from Scotland, having been born and raised in Dundee. He is one of the most expert officemen in the state, has been one of the most active men of Cascade County in building up the Masonic fraternity of Great Falls, and has perhaps as many warm friends in the city and county as any other man who ever resided here. Having been a factor in building up the city, Mr. Craig will be a valuable addition to the business and social life of Conrad."

Annual Class Riot At Stanford

Early Friday morning, October the third, was staged the annual Stanford Poster Fight, this year between the classes of '22 and '23. The idea of the fight is for the Sophomores to try to paste posters up with rules and regulations for the Freshmen to follow, and for the Freshmen to try to keep these posters from being put up. In connection with this is a grand "tubbing bee," in which the opposing sides endeavor to soak and duck each other as much as possible. The upper classmen act as judges and conductors of the scrap.

In this year's event the two classes met about 6 or 7:30 p. m., Thursday night and adjourned to the hills in a body decked out in their oldest clothes. The Frosh marched to their camping place up the Row to the refrain of "To H— with '22." Nothing could be seen of the Sophomores who had eventually met beforehand and gone to their camp earlier in the evening.

When the camping places were reached, several fires were started and preparations for entertainment for the night. Scouting parties left both camps in search of prisoners and each camp was successful in procuring a fair quantity of the enemy. These were used for purposes of amusement, singing songs, dancing etc., their endeavors being helped by liberal paddling with a board. Catsup shampoos and duckings were also the order.

The night was spent in this fashion until about 4:00 a. m., when the two classes formed ranks and marched to the battlefield on the Row. Detached groups from both sides were sent out, the Sophomores to lay posters, the Frosh to tear them up.

The class of '23 arrived on the scent first but '22 very quickly appeared. As soon as the two classes came together the ducking proceedings began. Each class had its own faucets, which were protected by its members. The fighting was done by groups or individuals. A bunch of five or six would lock arms and cruise around until they discovered one or two isolated enemy, whom they would seize, rush to the nearest friendly faucet, and lay him out beneath it, letting the water play upon his outstretched form.

There was action aplenty, piles of struggling arms and legs, and blackness everywhere, relieved only by a flare fastened to a near-by telephone pole. Those knocked out or partially drowned, and those who couldn't walk, the upper classmen would drag out on the sidewalk and revive.

The fight was stopped at 4:30 sharp, victory being acceded the Sophomores who were better organized and knew their members better. The Frosh put up a good fight and their scouting parties limited the posters to a minimum.

Bed was then indulged in by all and morning classes received a meagre attendance.

The second event of the week, known as the "Tie-Up," occurred Friday afternoon at 4:30, when the same two classes assembled on the football field.

As soon as the Frosh had received their itentification mark of green paint on their foreheads, the classes came together in the middle of the field with a rush. Here, as before, the contenders worked in groups, felling the enemy, tying them, hand and foot, and dragging them off to their respective morgues where they received a liberal supply of red or green paint on the face. They were then out of the fight which lasted half an hour.

The Frosh were awarded the forming of the Serpentine, the symbol of victory.

Improvement Club To Reorganize

The Improvement Club held its first meeting after the busy fruit season recess last Thursday evening. It was decided to reorganize and expand the club in order that its power for progress may be better understood. The club has been the one organization behind the improvement and betterment of our town and conditions and has been the only one which has been able to accomplish some things. The plan is to increase its usefulness and reorganization seems to be the best method.

A canvassing committee for ideas on the advisability of reorganization was appointed. They are: Messrs. S. G. Rodeck, C. H. Whitman, Dr. W. I. Merrill and H. C. Smith. To carry on the proper interest and campaign more money is necessary and the small annual dues has never been sufficient for the accomplishment of the task. The citizens will also be asked as to their views on higher dues to make the work more effective.

The committee met at the Press office Saturday evening and alotted the names of parties to be called on. If you are not visited on the proposition, kindly step up and let the committee know your views on the matter.

Elwood Baugh was elected to complete the term as secretary left vacant by the resignation of T. L. Mendel.

Mesdames G. L. Parso, C. F. Rubell, Mary Lamphear and Mr. F. S. Newcomb were appointed to the committee to work on the Red Cross membership drive in this community.

Now is the time when our vicinity is very popular and property much in demand and the club can work to so much better advantage if it receives the deserved backing of all.

Nucoa and Calinut, Butter Substitutes

Half the Price of Butter and equal food value - NUCOA and CALInut, butter substitutes

Many people are still shy of butter substitutes. For these people the word "oleomargarine" has an association more or less unpleasant. The fact is, however, that the most popular butter substitutes, those made from cocoanut oil, as are Nucoa and Calinut, are no more "oleo" in the original sense of the word than is butter.

Oleomargarine, as you doubtless know, was originally a by-product of the meat packing industry. One of the chief elements of this pioneer imitation butter was oleo oil expressed from oleo-stearine, a beef fat. Hence the name, oleomargarine. Partly because people are commonly suspicious of meat packing-house methods, and partly because this article was often fraudulently sold as genuine butter, oleomargarine early acquired a reputation of being "shady."

This "shady" reputation has quite naturally become the inheritance of all imitation butters; more particularly so as our national and state law-makers, in deference to to the wishes of the dairy industry, have ruled that all butter substitutes must be branded oleomargarine whether they contain oleo oils or not.

But a prejudice, needless to say, should not be held by people to their own disadvantage. Do not be afraid of Nucoa or Calinut because you see the dread word oleomargarine branded on the package. These excellent butter substitutes contain no oleo oils or other animal fats. Nucoa and Calinut are chiefly composed of cocoanut oil, and are manufactured under conditions sanitary and cleanly beyond question. Our national authority, Dr. Wiley, recommends the use of fats of this class because they are wholesome and comparatively inexpensive.

U. S. MANUFACTURERS SELL GUNS TO RUSSIA

American General in Siberia Holds Up Shipment of 14,000 Rifles

Omsk, Tuesday. — Major-General William S. Graves, commander of American forces in Siberia, in retaliation for alleged scurrilous articles published in a Vladivostok newspaper and hostile acts of Cossack chiefs in the Far East, has held up shipment of 14,000 rifles which recently arrived at Vladivostok from America consigned to the All-Russian government at Omsk.

Giving notice of his action by telegraph through Major Slaughter, his representative here, General Graves, in direct and forceful language, declares he will personally cause the arrest of the offending editor and the suppression of the newspaper—the Golos Rodini—unless the Omsk government does so. He asserts further that unless the activity of the Cossack chiefs is controlled he will recommend that America refuse to render further assistance to Russia. General Graves says he will retain the arms until advised as to what action the Omsk government proposes to take.

In replying, the Omsk government says that in its view the subject constitutes a diplomatic and not a military problem, which should be approached through recognized diplomatic channels, and that the government therefore awaits a communication from the State Department at Washington. It says that "not wishing to formulate any recriminations, it will not enter into an argument which might impair the lively sympathy which it believes has been awakened in America for the cause of Admiral Kolchak."

In respect to the holding up of the shipment of rifles, astonishment is expressed by the government that local troubles in the Far East, which the government regards as an international problem, and not a purely Russian one, "should impel General Graves to take steps which might jeopardize a far-reaching and more vital undertaking, namely, the suppression of Bolshevism at the critical moment when Siberian troops are conducting a successful offensive."

The threatened suppression of the newspaper, it is declared, could not conceivably be construed as a matter subject to American military jurisdiction.

MAN SHOT BY WOMAN AS HE ABANDONS HER

Oakland.—William Fleitchdeil, a machinist, was taken to the Emergency Hospital October 2 in a precarious condition with a gunshot wound in his side. Mrs. Hilda Wasson, with whom he is alleged to have been living at 715 Fourth avenue, is held in the city prison, charged with assault with intent to commit murder.

The shooting occurred following a quarrel between the couple and, according to the police, Fleitchdeil told Mrs. Wasson that owing to his being out of work through the strike he could not support her any longer and advised her to return to her husband, Sam Wasson, who lives at Tulare, and from whom she has been separated for some time.

According to the police, Fleitchdeil, following the quarrel, demanded that Mrs. Wasson return to him an electric flatiron and a blue sweater coat which he had given her, whereupon she is alleged to have procured the revolver and shot him.

It is believed the patient will recover.

Their clothing and the shape of their heads and other parts of their bodies differed from the clothing and bodies of the present-day Eskimos. Remains of several of the Eskimos were shipped by Van Vallen to the museum.

TRAPPED AT BOTTOM OF SEA BRAVE CHILIAN CREW SAVED

Rescue of 21 Sailors, Helpless in Submarine, Without One Loss, a Thrilling Chapter of Heroism in a Navy Already Rich in Traditions of Unfaltering Devotion to Duty.

New York.—Felix Nieto Del Rio, correspondent in New York of El Diario Ilustrado of Santiago, Chili, relates for the New York Herald the following story of the sinking of the submarine H-3 of the Chilian navy, and its remarkable rescue without loss of life:

In the beginning of June a maritime accident occurred in the military port of Talcahuano, Chili, which will figure with honor in the history of submarine navigation. The fact has special interest for the experts of the United States because the submarine H-3 of the Chilian war squadron was constructed here by the Electric Boat company. This submarine is one of six which the British government had ordered built during the war, but which she turned over to Chili along with 50 airplanes and hydroplanes of combat. England made this grant to Chili after having taken over for her own fleet two superdreadnaughts of 28,000 tons, as well as some destroyers of 2,000 tons and other smaller vessels which Chili was having constructed, and which were used by England in the war against Germany.

The submarine fleet left New London last year, conveyed by the cruiser Chacabuco, under the command of Admiral Luis Gomez Carreno. At Charleston a furious tempest came up, which lasted 70 hours, during which time the submarines, defying all danger, demonstrated their excellent construction and the dexterity of their Chilian crews. The transport Angamos, auxiliary of the fleet, was almost lost in the storm. Having thus proved the worth of the submarines, which at all times remained in a compact group, those in command understood that they could continue the trip to the coast of Chili with entire confidence.

The fleet touched at Havana, Kingston, Colon, Balboa, a port in Ecuador; Arica, Chili, Valparaiso and Talcahuano, their final destination.

This formidable voyage of many thousand miles is in truth a record that adds another proud page to the traditional competence and fearlessness of the Chilian sailors, who received their first naval instruction from the famous English admiral, Lord Cochrane, chief of the Chilian fleet during the war of independence. This exploit rebounded in all the scientific centers of submarine navigation, and has been recorded as one of the most interesting successful attempts made in the world. The greatest span of continued travel was between Ecuador and Chili, which is about 1,200 miles.

Ventilating Pipe Broken.

At a quarter to ten o'clock in the morning of June 1 the submarines started their customary exercises of submersion inside the military port of Talcahuano. Suddenly the commander, Capt. Del Solar, noticed that his boat had become very heavy and did not easily respond to the maneuvers. He then saw that the ventilating pipe in the battery of the stern had broken and that, besides water, strong fumes of chlorine were entering the compartment. With due presence of mind the commander ordered that the compartment be vacated, taking all the necessary precautions so that the water and gases might not enter the other sections of the submarine.

As the danger was becoming imminent, the telephone buoy was sent up to call for help, but there was no answer. Later it was found that the buoy had became entangled and had never reached the surface of the water. No answer to their calls for help proved to the crew that the situation was desperate. Nevertheless, never for a moment did the discipline of these men weaken.

While efforts were being made to get into communication with someone above, the men were trying to hermetically calk the partitions, it having been noted that the fumes of the chlorine from the main section had already begun to filter through the cracks. However, this compartment was soon filled with the poisonous gas and the men had to leave it to avoid asphyxiation. Orders were then given to retire to the only chamber left, that at the bow, where new and frightful tortures awaited them.

Just as soon as the officers and sailors had shut themselves up in the bow the electric current was cut off, leaving the submarine still submerged and in complete darkness. This to the various persons who had never boarded a submarine before in their lives, meant certain death. The commander exhorted his men to continue in the dark their work of calking up the compartment to stop the inrush of water and gas, which continued to spread throughout the boat. The hull was laying at a depth of 17 meters, in a bed of mud.

At Work in Darkness.

Each man worked at random in the dark; several of them were almost overcome and their strength had begun to leave them, but their discipline was not lessened for one moment. The only pump available drove the water out slowly, which helped to prolong the hope of rescue which these intrepid sailors had in their hearts. The air was well nigh irrespirable; their pulses beat with fury. But, in spite of all, each man was performing in the dark the task assigned him.

At five o'clock in the afternoon, six hours after the sinking, the crew heard the clatter of a chain that was being cut. They knew then that efforts for their rescue were under way and at the same time that these efforts were being frustrated. The submarine, after the chain was cut, had remained in position with her stern somewhat raised.

Meanwhile, in the world above, the disappearance of the H-3 had become known and all elements of rescue were set to work and succeeded in locating the position of the submarine from the indications of a tugboat which had accompanied the submarine up to the moment of the accident. Various other submarines and tugs placed themselves about this point and two heavy cranes with chains were set up in working order.

A diver who went to the bottom returned saying that the H-3 was lodged in the mud in a dangerous position and that the telephone buoy was entangled. After a little continued effort the telephone apparatus was straightened out and communication with the crew of the submarine reestablished. When questioned the commander replied with stoical valor that it would be necessary to raise the boat as soon as possible to save the lives of the crew. These words, said without anxiety, without fear in the presence of such a catastrophe, are worthy of the tradition that Prat set down for our navy, when seeing that his old wooden ship was about to be attacked by a powerful enemy of Chili, he said: "The flag of Chili has never been lowered and I hope this will not be the occasion for doing so." Prat, killed when he boarded the ship of the enemy, is an example which no Chilian sailor has ever forgotten.

Chains Slip and Craft Drops Back.

The hoists did not work right, the chains slipped and the H-3 returned to its old position. After some time the rescuers succeeded in passing a new chain under the submarine, which slowly raised by the stern so that the bow would be tipped as little as possible. While this maneuver was being made a tug cut the telephone connection and communication with the sunken vessel was again cut off and was not re-established.

The hours passed in extreme anguish, the victims believing that the attempts to save them were useless, and those making the attempts thinking it was already too late to rescue their brave companions alive. But the work was continued with energy, and at length the stern came to the surface.

That was the most solemn moment of the whole operation. Few believed that any of the crew would still be alive and that all they had done was to raise out of the sea a coffin containing 21 bodies.

With no means for communication with the submarine to let the men know that the stern was already above water, one of the sailors tapped the Morse code with a hammer on the outside. A few minutes passed and the hatchway was opened. A man appeared, exhausted, pale and his eyes bloodshot. One by one the rest followed.

Then when it was thought that only the captain was still on board; it was found that two men were missing. Captain Del Solar descended again into the submarine and found a machinist still calking and a fireman still at the pump. Neither of the two had received orders to come out and they remained at their posts.

The Chilian submarine H-8 was designated with the number E-12 in the English navy. It was the belief of the sailors that because it had borne this number it was certain to come to harm.

It was said that the accident was caused by the breaking of the bottom of the tank in the battery. At the time of the accident the automatic scaphanders for the rescue of the crew were not on board. They had been taken to the arsenal for repairs.

Monkey-Faced Owl Lives in Scrap Iron

El Paso, Tex.—A "monkey-faced" owl, one of the rarest of birds in this section of the country, was captured by employees of the Darbyshire-Harvie Foundry company. The bird was found hiding in a pile of scrap iron. It was given to the city zoo at Washington park. City Timekeeper Robert Smith took charge of the bird at the foundry and delivered it to the zoo at Washington park.

HUSBAND SAVES WIFE

From Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"For many months I was not able to do my work owing to a weakness which caused backache and headaches. A friend called my attention to one of your newspaper advertisements and immediately my husband bought three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me. After taking two bottles I felt fine and my troubles caused by that weakness are a thing of the past. All women who suffer as I did should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JAS. ROHRBERG, 620 Knapp St., N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should accept Mrs. Rohrberg's suggestion and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial.

For over forty years it has been correcting such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

1000-FT. RIVER OF LAVA BOILS SEA HALF MILE

Hilo, T. H.—A stream of lava 1000 feet wide is flowing into the sea at the rate of from 20 to 30 miles an hour from the crater of volcano Mauna Loa, which first threw forth lava Saturday, September 27. The stream of lava is now a virtual river from 20 to 30 feet high. Where the lava flows into the sea the waters are boiling for half a mile and are strewn with dead fish.

The sides of the flow are banked up by cooled lava and red hot boulders carried in the stream explode when they hit the water. Property damage resulting from the activity of Mauna Loa has not been large, although some forests and a few houses have been destroyed. The lava flow is mostly through a barren country, covered by previous flows from the crater.

Several herds of cattle are reported penned in by the divergent flows. Near the source of the flow the volcano remains normal and is seemingly unaffected, although great clouds of steam can be seen coming from the peak.

Volcano Kilauea, on an adjacent peak, remains unaffected by Mauna Loa's activity. Thousands of people are going from Hilo and other points on the island to witness the flow, which is visible from the sea to a newly-made crater 20 miles up the mountain.

MILLION-YEAR-OLD EGG; MIOCENE HORSE DISCOVERED

Amherst, Mass.—Professor F. B. Loomis of Amherst College has just returned from an extended geological trip to Nebraska and Colorado with a highly valuable collection of fossils for the museum to which he has already contributed generously.

What is considered his most valuable find is a complete skeleton of a Miocene horse, the second that has been found. His collection consists of 40 skulls, two other complete skeletons and 179 lots of bone, which he discovered and brought home for study.

In a sand pocket three feet wide and six feet deep, filled with fossils, he found an egg which he estimates as being a million years old, together with the skeleton of an early camel four feet high and a giraffe type of animal.

Vallejo.—Leo I. Cavanagh, in charge of the postoffice at Mare Island navy yard, is to return to the Vallejo office to assume the duties of supervisor of mails. This is a newly created position made necessary by the growth of Vallejo and the consequent increase in the postoffice business. It carries with it a substantial increase in pay. H. F. Kenworthy is to be transferred from the Vallejo postoffice to the one on Mare Island.

CALOMEL SELDOM SOLD HERE NOW

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.—Adv.

Hurrah! How's This

Cincinnati authority says corns dry up and lift out with fingers.

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezone tell him to order a small bottle for you.—Adv.

Movie for School

If the meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Grammar school is any criterion of the year's work, the Home and School Club certainly has a delightful prospect before it.

Altho the attendance was good with a number of new faces and some members of former years who have been absent for a time, there are still many other mothers who would be very welcome.

Considerable business was brot before the club. The names of the new officers and department chairmen were read: President, Mrs. I. P. Beal, Vice-Pres., Mrs. J. E. Crawford; Treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Brown; Secretary, Miss Vida Reese; Child Hygiene, Miss Minnie Atkinson; Finance, Mrs. C. W. Toles; Hospitality, Mrs. B. O. Curry; Home Department, Mrs. W. I. Merrill; Membership, Mrs. J. G. Burns; Child Welfare Magazine, Mrs. M. E. Purmort; Americanization, Mrs. H. C. Smith; Philanthropy, Mrs. C. H. Whitman; Education, Mrs. W. C Bohnett; Publicity, Mrs. C. Gard.

The club voted to continue the social hour, and to facilitate the work of the committees it was voted to hold a "China Shower" next month—each lady to donate one cup and tea size plate to be kept at the school.

The next subject, which is one of wide spread interest, was the report of Mr. W. C. Bohnett, who had been requested to investigate moving picture machines with a view to the purchase of one by the club for the auditorium. The United States government and the U. of C. Extension department loan many reels of great interest and educational value, and the use of many more of the kind desirable for both children and adults may be rented reasonably.

The opinion seemed very favorable that a suitable machine could be purchased and paid for from receipts of admission and would be a great asset to the school and to the town, which has no popular place of amusement or entertainment.

The executive board, department chairmen and a committee were authorized to continue the investigation and arrive at some definite conclusion relative to the purchase of such machine as our auditorium is equipped for the installation of one.

Mrs. F. J. Keller was present and very clearly outlined the plan of work set down as the part the Parent-Teacher Associations are called upon to take in the work of "Americanization." It is work calling for the best efforts of everyone interested in the welfare of our country and state.

A delightful social hour followed during which Robert Holmes, Jr., played a piano solo, exhibiting skill and well-trained memory for one of his years. Refreshments were served under the charge of Mrs. Curry, assisted by three eighth grade girls.

A very cordial invitation is extended to all mothers and other women interested in Child Welfare to attend these meetings.

THE trustees of Campbell district will call a mass meeting of the electors of the district to discuss plans for the disposition of the old school building. This meeting will be held the last of this month altho the date has not yet been set. As it is, the building is fast deteriorating in value, is an absolute eye-sore, greatly detracting from the appearance of the grounds, and the ground it occupies is very much needed. There is a strong sentiment in favor of removing this building and now seems to be a very opportune time to do it.

BUY OR BUILD is the new slogan in Campbell. The demand for residential property in this thriving community is daily increasing. There is scarcely a house to be had for anything but the purchase price. Here is an opportunity for some investor to build and sell a few moderate priced bungalows.

Popular Young Couple Wedded

One of our pioneer homes was the scene of another happy affair Saturday afternoon. The occasion was the marriage of Miss Hattie A. Bohnett and Herbert C. Gardner at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bohnett.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. L. Preston of Campbell, in the presence of the relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride and groom. Both are members of old-time highly respected families and have a host of warm friends in our midst who join with us in the expression of most sincere good wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

A noticeable feature of the occasion was the coincidence of dates, this being the 45th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bohnett's marriage and of another married daughter and the 80th birthday of the groom's grandmother, Mrs. A. G. Gardner who was also present.

After November 1st they will be at home at the J. E. Wiesendanger ranch on Saratoga Avenue where Mr. Gardner will help supervise the work.

Interesting Trip

A very interesting meeting of the Punditas was held at the spacious home of Mrs. B. O. Curry, on Oct. 8th, when Mrs. Purmort gave a splendid word picture of "A Trip Thru New Orleans," that she had taken a few years ago.

Interesting views, historical romance, humorous dialect pieces and old southern melodies all combined to transport the audience to the land of the "Sunny South." The refreshments of ice-cold watermelon and other southern goodies only needed a darkey waiter to make the scene intensely realistic. The next meeting of the Circle will be held at the home of Mrs. T. H. Corning, who will be assisted by Mrs. J. K. Tate. The country to be visited will be Nova Scotia.

Charles Burke was a week-end visitor with his family at the Fablinger home on North Central Avenue. He is located at Turlock.

Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Preston went to San Francisco Tuesday to consult a specialist concerning a possible operation. Mr. Preston will return later in the week.

HOME-BREWED DRINKS.

A leaflet published by the National W. C. T. U. tells plainly of the dangers of home-brewed drinks. We quote some of its warnings:

At the present time the daily papers are carrying advertisements of extracts for making "a delicious home drink"—ever so many drinks "for a cent"—"give it to the children," etc. Now just look at the advertisement for a second. To make that drink you are told to use sugar, water, yeast. Where this combination exists unsterilized, you will get alcoholic fermentation, which means Alcohol, and your beverage is an alcoholic beverage, growing stronger as long as it stands, until the sugar is used up or the alcohol is abundant enough to kill the yeast. All that the "extract" does is to give flavor. It is like the stone in the famous "stone-soup" story; it furnishes the name. The real drink is derived from the other ingredients. Some of the beverages sold at the soda fountain as "root beer" are simply carbonated drinks flavored with the root extract. Such, of course, are not alcoholic. But it is a good plan to be sure what one is getting if "root beer" must be drunk.

Home-makers are still making "home brew." Every woman ought to understand now as never before that when she makes it she is producing an alcoholic beverage, weak at first, but stronger as fermentation proceeds; that it is not a harmless drink to give to children; that it may easily perpetuate that seeking for false effects that alcohol imparts, popularly called the craving for alcohol.

Above all, be it remembered, that continued use of quantities of alcohol too small to cause drunkenness, nevertheless cause measurable physical and mental impairment—a form of slow poisoning. And if the women of the country really want to get rid of the influence of alcohol upon the home, they will steadfastly refrain from making home-brew, home-wine or home-cider.

The entire leaflet may be purchased for two cents, or 35 cents per hundred, and may well be put into the hands of well-meaning but thoughtless home-keepers.
